Gordon W. Allport defines prejudice as a hostile attitude or feeling toward a person solely because he or she belongs to a group to which one has assigned objectionable qualities.
Allport stresses that this hostile attitude is not merely a hasty prejudgment before one knows the facts.

Yet he also viewed prejudice as a fundamentally irrational hatred, born of ignorance and the ego-defensive maneuvers of people with weak personality structures. Thus, from the standpoint of logical consistency, Allport often left much to be desired, but from the standpoint of generating ideas, he could hardly have been more successful" in - Introduction:
